

Tommy and Annie
in
No Need To Shout
By
Chris Blackston

Tommy and Annie knelt down
by their beds.
They closed their eyes
and bowed their heads, asking God to watch over them and to keep their family safe.

When they were through they opened their eyes, and saw their daddy coming in just to say goodnight.

They asked their daddy "Is Heaven near, or should we pray louder so God can hear?"

Their daddy smiled, and put them in bed then gave them each a kiss on the head.
Then he whispered, "Children there's something my mother would say, about God and Heaven and the prayers we pray."

She would say, "Heavnes just a prayer away, and God hears every word we say, we don't need to scream them out, God can hear us there's no need to shout."

Then he pulled their covers up cozy and tight, and kissed them again then told them goodnight.

He smiled at his children as he walked away, and as he pulled the door to he heard them say, "Heavens just a prayer away, and God hears every word we say. We don't need to scream them out, God can hear us there's no need to shout."

The End

Copyright © 2003 by Chris Blackston

All rights reserved

Illustrated by Chris Blackston

Software used:

Blender Foundation/Blender

e frontier/Curious Labs/Poser5

Daz Studios/Bryce5

ArcSoft/Photo Impressions2000